

THE VANGUARD LIFE SCIENCES CEOs FORUM

LEADING THROUGH COMPLEXITY

Foley & Lardner, 111 Huntington Ave, Suite 2500, Boston, Nov 14, 2023, 12 to 7 pm ET

MODERATORS: Ken Banta; Founder and CEO, The Vanguard Network
Ken Stone; Editorial Director, The Vanguard Network

REGISTRATIONS & LIGHT LUNCH (12 to 12:45 pm)

INTRODUCTION, REVIEW AGENDA (12:45 to 1 pm)

SESSIONS (1 to 6 pm)

1. The People Factor

Session Leaders: Corinne Le Goff; CEO and President, Imunon

Viq Pervaaz; Advisor on Human capital; Life Sciences Executive

- It all starts with the people: What are the talent and development priorities for Life Sciences CEOs for 2024?
- How do transformational factors in our sector, including AI, affect the capabilities we need on our teams?
- Small group work: What is the most pressing people issue for you in 2024?

2. Can you prepare for an unexpected disaster? What is your role when it happens?

Session Leaders: Larry Vernaglia; Senior Partner, Foley & Lardner LLP

Ray Jordan; Principal, Putnam Insights

- Simulation: A cyber attack on Inventive BioSciences threatens the survival of the company. What should CEO Susan Waters do?
- Table-top exercise and decision-making

BREAK

3. From scientist to leader

Session Leader: Tal Zaks; Partner, Private Equity, OrbiMed

- How we engineered the Moderna COVID vaccine, and got it to the patients, with record speed
- Key lessons learned

4. What makes for a great life sciences CEO?

Session Leader: Fred Hassan; Managing Director, Partner, Warburg Pincus

with Tal Zaks; Partner, Private Equity, OrbiMed

- The view from the CEO seat
- The view from the Board seat
- The view as an investor

BREAK

5. How will we succeed as leaders in 2024?

- Small group discussion: From what we have discussed today, what is the one new thing I will do as CEO to accelerate high performance in 2024?
- Tables share their top learnings with the room

CLOSE

- Final thoughts
- Wrap-up

NETWORKING RECEPTION (6 to 7 pm)

DINNER (7:30 to 9 pm) *Optional, please register in advance.

Supported by Foley & Lardner LLP